

Manoj Singh

Manoj Singh retired from Deloitte on May 30, 2015, at the end of a thirty-six-year career with the firm. Most recently he served as the Chief Operating Officer at Deloitte Touché Tohmatsu Ltd. after assuming that responsibility in June 2007. Prior to this, he was the Asia Pacific CEO of Deloitte Touché Tohmatsu.

Manoj is a management consultant by background and has extensive experience in the area of strategy and operations. He has advised many national and multinational companies on mergers and acquisitions, post-merger integration and shareholder value growth, with a specific focus on technology, manufacturing, and the energy industry.

Manoj presently serves on several public and private boards such as DXC Technology, The Putnam Funds, and Abt Associates. He is also on the board a few non-profit entities such as Pratham USA, a NGO focused on improving child illiteracy in India, and the Rubin Museum. He is a frequent speaker on matters relating to operational excellence, Big Data, and building businesses in the emerging markets within Asia and Africa.

Manoj Singh has a B.S. in Electrical Engineering from the Indian Institute of Technology, and a M.S. in Industrial Administration from Carnegie Mellon University in the United States.

Born in India, Manoj completed high school and undergraduate education in India before immigrating to the United States in 1974. He and his wife, Rita, have two married daughters and four grandchildren. They travel extensively around the world and have a great love for the outdoors including hiking, tennis, and golf.
